Management Discussion of Fund Performance

Investment Objective and Strategies

This Fund follows a sustainable thematic approach and invests in common shares of small, medium and large-cap global companies. The Fund integrates broad Environmental, Social and Governance (ESG) criteria, and excludes all issuers directly involved in the extraction, processing and transportation of fossil fuels.

This Fund is unique in that it aims to support both financial and sustainable returns. With respect to financial results, it strives to outperform global stock markets. The pooled fund also seeks to help improve the world by investing in companies offering leading environmental and social solutions.

Genus Capital Management Inc. (the Fund's Manager) begins by identifying the world's 150 most sustainable companies based on products, services and programs that support the following themes: renewable energy, energy efficiency, water and waste management, access to education, health care, financial services and technology and sustainable agriculture. Next, the manager selects a portfolio of the top 20 to 40 companies through a quantitative multi-style discipline that evaluates opportunities based on value, growth, expectation, momentum, quality and sustainability.

Risk

There were no significant changes to the investment objective and strategies that affected the Fund's overall level of risk during the reporting period and the risks of investing in the Fund and the suitability of the Fund for investors remain as discussed in the Simplified Prospectus.

Results of Operations

The Fund's net asset value decreased to $22.1 million as at December 31, 2018 from $25.4 million as at December 31, 2017. Over the same period, the Fund's net return was -11.8% versus the -8.2% benchmark. The Fund's net return is after the deduction of expenses.

Global stock markets fell during the second half of the year with US stocks hit the hardest as investors questioned how much farther the bull market could run. The US Federal Reserve struck a more hawkish tone on rate hikes than what the market wanted, which proved to be a major catalyst for the correction.

The S&P 500 climbed in third quarter and then in the fourth quarter fell 13.52% (-8.63% in CAD terms) and fell 4.39% (+4.22% in CAD terms) in 2018. The weakest sectors during the fourth quarter were Information Technology and Industrials with the Real Estate and Utilities sectors eking out small gains.

Canada fell less during the quarter relative to the US but lost more during 2018 as it fell 10.11% and 8.88% during those periods. In the fourth quarter, the index was dragged down by the Financials and Industrials sectors. The Materials, Communication Services, and Consumer Staples sectors finished the quarter in positive territory.

With the trade war between the US and key trading partners dragging on, weakness in other major economies started to show, despite US economic strength seen throughout the year. Weakness filtered through the economy as businesses began to prepare for higher costs along with tightening labour markets and lower demand. Around the world, purchasing managers' indexes (PMI), a popular measure of economic health, fell sharply from highs earlier this year.

Commodity prices also reflected weakness. Copper prices, a commonly cited indicator of economic strength, were down sharply. This was despite the temporary truce between Presidents Trump and Xi at the G20 summit in early December. During a 90-day truce period, the two sides have agreed to work on a resolution with minor concessions given by China, which included repurchasing soybeans and making verbal commitments to open up their economy.

Political conflicts during 2018 were at elevated levels, and the last half of the year was no exception. Questions about the future of the Italian budget and Brexit remain and trading relations between the US and China are still up in the air. However, things looked a little brighter toward year end as some disagreements were resolved and temporary agreements were made.

Closer to home, Canada was put in a difficult situation after detaining Huawei's CFO Meng Wanzhou at the request of the US. Pressures from both the US and China began to mount as two Canadians were arrested in China shortly after the news broke. Many Chinese consumers also began to boycott Canadian goods, and many Canadians worry this could filter through to business investments and delay projects, putting further pressure on Canada's economy.

For the Genus Fossil Free High Impact fund, we had a -11.8% return (in USD terms) versus the benchmark of -8.2%. Our zero allocation in the Energy sector helped our performance as Energy dropped 20.75% in the benchmark. However, the fund was hurt by our underweight position in Consumer Staples and our overweight position in Materials. Another negative factor was poor stock selection in Health Care and Consumer Discretionary.

Top performers were Eli Lilly (Health Care), Vestas Wind (Industrials), and VMware (Information Technology). The bottom performers were DS Smith (Industrials), Abiomed (Health Care), and Panasonic (Consumer Discretionary).

Recent Developments

The Fed's December rate hike, although expected, caused a ripple through stock markets, and the S&P 500 tested new lows (2,350) in late December, but the rate hike wasn't the only driver — weaker US economic data, US-China trade tensions and uncertainty in Europeans were also factored in. As a result, we held a position in cash throughout the period. We will maintain this approach until we see more signals about market direction.

In terms of sector exposures, we are favouring some defensive sectors, including Real Estate. However, there are many high impact companies in Industrials and Information Technology so those sectors also have a high allocation. We still view Financials negatively given current levels of market volatility.

1 This information is provided as at December 31 of the year shown; unless noted otherwise.

2 Management expense ratio is based on total expenses (excluding commissions and other portfolio transaction costs) for the stated period and is expressed as an annualized percentage of the daily average net asset value during the period.

3 The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the period.

4 The Fund's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund's portfolio adviser manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the year. The higher a fund's portfolio turnover rate in a year, the greater the trading costs payable by the fund in the year, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the year. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of a fund.

PAST PERFORMANCE

The following charts show how the Fund has performed in the past, and can help you understand the risks of investing in the Fund. These returns include the reinvestment of all distributions and would be lower if an investor did not reinvest distributions. They do not include deduction of sales, switch, redemption, or other optional charges (which dealers may charge) or income taxes payable, and these returns would be lower if they did. The Fund's past performance does not necessarily indicate how it will perform in the future.
